Session 8 – Leveraging Private Partnerships: Building Local Capacity and Stimulating Economic Development

Liberty Room

Moderator:

Christian Foster, Deputy Administrator, Office of Trade Programs, Foreign Agricultural Service, USDA

Panelists:

Paul Burke, Director of Marketing and Industry Relations, American Soybean Association-International Marketing

The ASA-IM is improving the efficiency of aquaculture production in developing countries by introducing soy feed and modern management practices. Their technical assistance and educational activities have transformed the industry in China and India into commercially viable sectors. They are doing similar work in Vietnam and Bangladesh. An aquaculture project is planned for Ghana, where a small monetary investment by a local company can result in a commercially viable enterprise that spurs growth and creates employment opportunities.

Peter Klaiber, International Marketing Director, USA Dry Pea & Lentil Council

USADPLC developed a U.S. pea-based protein beverage, initially intended for use in overseas school lunch programs. They provided technical assistance to local processors participating in a pilot program in Indonesia. The in-country processors have potential to also produce and market the product commercially. USADPLC is pursuing opportunities to implement this program in sub-Saharan Africa.

Session 8 – Leveraging Private Partnerships: Building Local Capacity and Stimulating Economic Development

Liberty Room

John Toaspern, Vice President, International Marketing, U.S. Potato Board

U.S. dehydrated potato products have been used in a variety of food distribution programs, including granules fortified with micronutrients. The Potato Board is researching the potential for several new products that can be used as part of a food basket, blended with locally available foods to improve the quality of products targeted to beneficiary populations, and further developed as a base ingredient for commercial production and sale by local companies.

Alan Tracy, Chief Executive Officer, U.S. Wheat Associates

USWA provides capacity building support to wheat millers worldwide to improve the efficiency of their businesses and using formulas to attain desired product characteristics. Many years of capacity building support to Nigerian millers has developed wheat milling into the second largest industry in Nigeria. The increased capacity of Nigerian wheat mills has resulted in their ability to export wheat products regionally.
